

Community Health Worker/Representative Opioid Overdose & Naloxone Use Training

Many in our communities are struggling with accidental opioid overdoses. Opioids are heroin, prescription drugs like hydrocodone and oxycodone, and other drugs with fentanyl (a strong and potentially lethal opioid).

The Arizona Center for Rural Health offers training to learn about opioid use and how to use Naloxone to save a life. Find out how you can support friends and family members who are at-risk for overdose and how to connect them to appropriate resources.

Who? Arizona Community Health Workers/Representatives and Promotores de Salud*

Want a training? <https://is.gd/naloxonetraining> or scan the QR Code below with your phone.

Questions? Contact Elena Cameron at 520-626-4706 or ercameron@email.arizona.edu.

*A Community health worker is defined by APHA as a “frontline public health worker who is a trusted member of and/or has an unusually close understanding of the community served. This trusting relationship enables the worker to serve as a liaison/link/intermediary between health/social services and the community to facilitate access to services and improve the quality and cultural competence of service delivery”

THE UNIVERSITY OF ARIZONA
MEL & ENID ZUCKERMAN COLLEGE OF PUBLIC HEALTH
Center for Rural Health

AzCHOW
Arizona Community Health Workers Association

This training was supported by Grant number CDC-RFA-CE19-1904 funded by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. Its contents are solely the responsibility of the authors and do not necessarily represent the official views of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention or the Department of Health and Human Services.